

Medical Reserve Corps

Emergency Preparedness

Master's Series

A FREE training series for individuals interested in supporting local emergency preparedness

Are you prepared?

In the event of a natural disaster or terrorism event, the first response is a local one. Would you and your family be ready?

In support of National Preparedness Month, DeKalb County Board of Health's Medical Reserve Corps is offering a series of free educational classes on emergency preparedness in September and October.

Get the training you need to build a safe community.

Courses

- Incident Command
- When Terrorism Strikes
- Heart Saver First Aid
- Practical Disaster Drill

All training courses will be in the Bohan Auditorium at the DeKalb County Board of Health, 445 Winn Way, Decatur (located near DeKalb Medical Center).

Who should attend?

All who seek to assist with local emergency preparedness efforts in DeKalb County, including staff and volunteers of health and other community organizations.

Trainers

All courses will be facilitated by certified staff from the Emergency Medical Training Center of Monroe, GA. The center has over 10 years experience training individuals and organizations in emergency response and preparedness procedures.

Registration

To register, visit www.dekalbhealth.net/mrc/ and download a registration packet. This program is free. For more information, call Bilkisu Danjaji at 404-294-3796 or mrc@dekalbhealth.net.

Sponsor

DeKalb County Board of Health:
Medical Reserve Corps
Personal Health Services

www.dekalbhealth.net

